

How do you improve upon what already works well? Very carefully.

Wireless Generation's mCLASS® became the leading handheld-to-Web assessment system because of our relentless dedication to developing tools that help educators accomplish more and save time. We applied the same level of diligence to our search for new devices to deliver that experience. These affordable options will provide long-term stability, don't require third party software distribution, and meet our high standards for 1:1 assessment. Beginning January 2010, mCLASS software will be available on:

- select Microsoft® Windows®-based tablet notebooks and netbooks
- handheld touch tablets that connect to a computer via USB
- a new private-label device for the Palm® platform